GOVERNMENT PUBLICATIONS

The United States is the nation's largest book dealer, publishing 65,000 different titles each year and totaling more than 18,000,000 books sold. One of the griefs of the Lincoln collector is the classifying of government publications which might properly be included in a Lincoln bibliography.

The Lincoln National Life Foundation has attempted to organize this material chronologically, especially for identification purposes. A greatly abbreviated check list is made available here, in order to be able to include in one issue of Lincoln Lore the items which would properly fall in the Lincolniana classification. The titles consist of congressional records, both Senate (S) and House (H), also War Department orders (W), general orders (G) and executive proclamations and writings, (E) Congressional addresses made by individuals are not included here, but naturally fall under the name of the author of the remarks.

All eligible items in the Fish (F), Oakleaf (O), and Starr (S) bibliographies (Bib.) have been noted except the large number of broad sheets printed on one or both sides, listed by Starr. Broad sheets are not included in the new items noted unless they are found in Fish or Oakleaf. Publications in which the President, with a formal greeting, submits government papers to Congress, are not included, unless the President's own opinions predominate in the discussion.

It is not expected that the list that follows will be found complete, but it is a start, at least, in an attempt to clarify to some extent a very difficult task of cataloguing.
