BEST MAGAZINE ARTICLE—FIRST QUARTER 1948

There were a large number of worth while monographs appearing in various magazines for the first quarter of 1948, which gave the Advisory Group of the Foundation abundant material from which to select the outstanding contribution. First place was awarded David Rankin Barbee for his article in the Abraham Lincoln Quarterly for March entitled, "President Lincoln and Doctor Gurley." Second place choice went to F. Lauriston Bullard for his contribution in the Lincoln Herald for February entitled, "Abe Goes Down the River."

Some of the selections for first honors during the past years follow:

- 1943 Basler, Roy P., "As One Southerner to Another." South Atlantic Quarterly, Jan. 1943.
- 1944 McMurtry, R. Gerald, "Was Thomas Lincoln Photographed?" Lincoln Herald, Feb. 1944.
- 1945 Monaghan, Jay, "An Analysis of Lincoln Funeral Sermons." Indiana Magazine of History, March 1945.
- 1946 Baringer, William E., "The Writings of Lincoln." Abraham Lincoln Quarterly, March 1946.
- 1947 Randall, James G., "Great Unanswered Questions About Lincoln." New York Times Magazine, Feb. 2, 1947.

One other service is rendered by this annual contest. It encourages the Foundation to make an exhaustive search for all magazines carrying Lincoln features. While the magazine articles submitted to the judges for consideration must be at least 1000 words in length with the author named, there are other contributions which are worth while listing. The issue of Lincoln Lore which annually reports the results of the contest for the best magazine also makes available an extensive check list of Lincoln articles, appearing in various magazines for the first quarter of the year.
